NON - PARTISAN LEAGUE FORMED

The hull in the present campaign for judge has been broken by the announcement of a meeting held yesterday afternoon by members of the legal profession, business men and others when a Non-Partisan League for the election of a judge of Warren and Forest counties was formulated.

It was brought out at the session that the electorate must be brought out of its apathy to realize what an important position the judgeship is and that it must be filled by one matured in legal knowledge and wide experience. Speakers have volunteered their services to bring the message before the public and that there will be further announcements to be made as the campaign progresses.

Favorite Baby Election Is Taking Place at Head Of Current Events

Delighting her many backers as well as her parents, Nancy Lu Hall, three years of age, made a spectacular gain—coming to fifth from 14th; she is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Alton ("Springer") Hall, of East Hickory.

Nancy Teconchuk lost four notches in the race, going from first to fifth, and Frederick Philip Lauffenburger advanced to sixth from 12th, while Sonia Cathelene Stover went from sixth to seventh. Thomas Lane Peterson, eighth from 24 and Toni Lee Callenburg advanced to ninth from 15th, with Betty Jane Confer losing two places, going to 10th from eighth.

The very keen competition can better be realized when the entire Honor Roll standing is perused, and the many changes noted; some babies have lost coveted positions, while, of course, other little beauties have gained new prominence in the listings—which indicates lively action this week, when some observing young hopeful will be enriched by $25.00 cash, to be awarded the baby polling the greatest number of votes, both merchant and subscription votes counted. This special prize will be awarded immediately after the week's votes are tabulated, and the winner's name will be published along with the new standings next Tuesday. "Every baby starts on even and equal terms for their special prize, and it gives each baby the opportunity of building up a vote total for the title of "The Community's Favorite Baby." The $500 cash prize, one of the huge Loving Cups, also the opportunity of winning this added $25.00.

"Every baby in the list has the same opportunity to win the title of "Community's Favorite," $500 and lasting honors. No party issues are involved—no stump speaking—no wire pulling, no lobbying. Just votes. The plan by which winners are to be determined is simple, yet the election will be carried on as painstakingly and as methodically as though the presidency of the United States were at stake.

The important thing to remember is the Extra Vote Credit that is given upon Warren Times-Mirror subscriptions the remainder of this week and up to Saturday, November 1st, so that you can make a special effort in your favorite's behalf while votes are easily obtained. Remember, also, that it is the speed attained and held right at the finish of any race that usually determines the winners and with such keen interest being manifested in the nominees throughout the election all of the communities will be eagerly awaiting the outcome. Being a winner in The Favorite Baby Election is going to be quite a distinction for your nominee and please bear in mind that there are Thirty Awards to be made and consequently there will be Thirty Winners.

Remember, new subscriptions count extra votes. Get your friends and relatives to subscribe. Now and assist your baby in being selected Favorite of the Communities. This suggestion deserves your serious consideration.

Determine today to leave nothing undone in your baby's behalf and that The Favorite Baby Election, like the election of the "growns," will be determined by votes. If your baby receives the Most Votes, he or she will be declared the Favorite of all the Communities beautiful Babies and receive the lasting honor, the beautiful big loving cup and the largest cash award. Don't forget that the baby of the opposite sex polling the highest number of votes will receive full honors, an identical cup and the cash award to which they are entitled. Isn't it worth working hard for? Make it a "landslide" of votes for Your Favorite.

CRITICAL FIRE HAZARD CREATED BY LEAF FALL

The resplendent array of colored leaves which ushered in the autumn season now forms a thick carpet over the forest floor. Rains and killing frosts have done their work and nature's blanket to protect seedlings overwinter has once more been laid down. It is unfortunate that this protective ground covering is, for a period, so highly inflammable, stated Supervisor R. F. Hemmingway of Allegheny National Forest. Frosts cause the leaves to curl up and the sun and winds change them to a tinder dryness. Surely, no thinking person will jeopardize his heritage in these great public forest areas by being careless with fire.

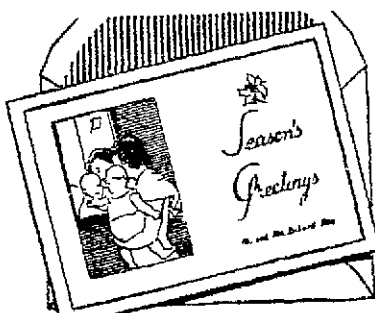

The Forest Service of the Department of Agriculture, and the Pennsylvania Department of Forests and Waters have trained organizations to cope with the fire menace. If freed from the tedious job of fire fighting by a public determined to keep forest fires from starting, these two organizations can accomplish many useful tasks which will add greatly to the enjoyment of your forest playground and the value of its timber resources.

A little extra care and thoughtfulness during short periods each fall and spring will do wonders toward making this portion of the war-torn world an even better place in which to live. Help prevent fires.

NOW GOOD TIME TO ELIMINATE PESTS IN TREES

Harrisburg, Oct. 21 — The autumn and winter months are an excellent time to eradicate tent caterpillars which make their unsightly appearance in April and May, according to Deputy Secretary Chas. E. Baer, of the Department of Forests and Waters.

Persons having areas which have been infested with these pests can prevent many of the potential worms from maturing next spring by destroying the characteristic egg masses during the autumn and winter months. The egg masses are very noticeable in the winter as dark colored bands encircle small branches and twigs of broad-leaved trees such as cherry, apple, oak and maple. Each egg contains some 300 to 400 eggs. The eggs hatch into larvae about the time the leaves appear in the spring.

The caterpillars spin webs in the crotches of the trees on which the eggs have been placed. The larvae work out from these webs, devouring the foliage and increasing the size of the webs as they develop. Worthless fire cherry and apple trees whose branches may be covered with thousands of eggs should be cut down and burned.

Mr. Baer states that the department will identify egg masses of these pests for persons who send samples to the Harrisburg Office.

County Agent's News

Keep Heifers Growing in Late Fall Months

Size and breeding are important for high milk production in dairy cows, reminds County Agent O. C. Tritt. A cow must have an inheritance for milk production; but unless she also has the capacity to handle plenty of feed, the inherited ability to produce milk can never be realized.

Heifers that have made excellent growth on pasture during the summer, often lose flesh in the late fall months because of neglect. If heifers are allowed to become thin it may take several weeks to get them back into a growing condition again.

Hay is an excellent feed for heifers and may be fed in racks so they can help themselves. Grain feeding may be necessary in some cases. Home grown grain may be used entirely or as a large part of the grain mixture. A high protein feed is not necessary at this time.

Mr. Tritt explains that within a given breed, large cows produce more milk than small cows on the average. A well grown heifer may also be bred to freshen two to four months earlier than a poorly developed individual.

Saving Gas by Tractor Motor Changes Explained

A saving of two million gallons of gasoline annually is possible by changing low compression farm tractor motors to the high compression type according to agricultural engineers of the Pennsylvania State College.

In estimating the possible statewide saving as well as more economical operation, V. S. Peterson, agricultural engineering extension specialist, used figures gathered at tractor meetings conducted by the College's agricultural extension service throughout the State last winter.

At least 15,000 of the estimated 60,000 tractors in the State, it was found, are burning gasoline exclusively in low compression motors. Texas at Penn State by Professor A. W. Clyde show that the average Pennsylvania farm tractor, when doing normal farm work, will consume about 15 percent less gasoline when the gasoline is burned in high compression motors.

In changing a tractor motor from low to high compression it is necessary either to put in high altitude pistons or to put on a high compression head, depending on the make of the motor. This is a simple and relatively inexpensive operation at the time a motor is overhauled.

PEACH PITS FOR FUEL

A man in San Leandro, Calif. has operated a thriving business for the past 11 years buying peach pits from canneries. He sells them to the public for 10 cents for a large gunny sackful. The peach pits ignite easily, burn for a long time and produce an intense heat. They are said to be as good as hard coal for fuel.

HOPE IS IN ABILITY TO LEARN

If there is one thing on which all thoughtful people agree, it is this: the kind of world Hitler is trying to impose will never be beaten by an effort to return to the old ways, the old order. The one thing the anti-Hitler forces have to offer which Hitler cannot offer, is hope.

There is no hope in a return to a brutal sub-medievalism, a "civilization" in which de-personalized millions are made into animated work units under a Nazi overlordship.

The hope that lies in a return to the old ways, however, is not good enough, not strong enough, to fight this thing. It takes a hope in a better world to come, a world better than we have known, to rally men to defeat the Nazi menace.

We who have known freedom, who have been born in freedom, knowing only freedom all our lives, are secure in our conviction that only under freedom can those new goals be achieved. There is not yet a plausible blue-print of just how they may be achieved, nor even of exactly what they are. But given freedom, we know the course is forward.

Every free man and woman bears his or her share in dreaming this dream, holding fast to faith in it, achieving it in action. There are hopeful signs that a new spirit is being born. Out of the dreary years of depression, out of the whirlwind of World War II, it is coming.

A sense of social responsibility is the key. Scientists who formerly labored without a thought of what was to be the use of their inventions and developments, are beginning to ask those questions. Professional men are beginning to realize that they do not live in a vacuum sealed away from the world, but that they are a functioning part of it. Organized labor, nearing triumphs of power, is only now beginning to see that its power of itself is nothing, that unless it is fitted into a social scheme offering a chance for all, it defeats itself. Business men will never again be the utterly self-centered operators of the early twenties, for they have seen with disconcerting clarity that there is no welfare for business separate from the welfare of working and middle-class people. New relationships between government as representing the common welfare of all, and business, regional, industrial and labor groups representing the welfare of fractions, are in the making, not clearly understood as yet, but gropingly forming.

Were we incapable of learning, of adjusting ourselves to the new, of creating institutions as need for them arises, all would be hopeless. But we are learning, and in that lies our hope.

WHAT-NEXT IN ICELAND?

An unspecified number of seasoned American soldiers have reinforced the sailors and marines who took over the defense of that outpost early in July. So far as we have been told, the task of taking over from the British complete responsibility for the defense of Iceland has not yet been accomplished. It is nearly four months since the Americans landed with the intent of "eventually" relieving the British.

Certainly it would be a better service to the British if 20 or 30 thousand British troops could be brought back from Iceland to places where they are more urgently needed. The problem of supplying them would also be eliminated. Yet so far as we are informed, the defense of Iceland is still a joint venture, with American troops in constant danger of a perfectly legitimate attack aimed at the British; if Americans should be killed, we could not make a valid protest, whereas if American soldiers stood frankly and publicly alone in Iceland any attack made upon them would have to be a deliberate attack on a known American position. Here we can further aid the British and at the same time help ourselves.

12,000,000 VOLUNTEERS WANTED

The American Red Cross has something like 20,000,000 members in the days of World War I. Today it has around 8,000,000, in a country whose population has grown from 100 million to 133 million.

What more is to be said? The job before the American people is clear. It would require 12,000,000 new Red Cross members merely to equal the record of World War I. To make a comparable showing, six million more would have to enroll.

EDSON'S WASHINGTON . . . LIBERTY MOTORS, TOO LATE TO AID U. S. IN 1918, NOW DRIVE RUSSIAN TANKS AGAINST THE GERMANS

BY WILLIS TORNTON

NEA Service Staff Correspondent

Detroit, Oct. 21.—Twenty-three years is a long time to wait for a dividend, but it's sweet when the dividend comes at last.

The United States is now collecting some unexpected dividends on a huge investment in 1917-1918 in the Liberty motor—the motor that came to dominate the aviation field just too late to be the deciding factor in World War I that it was expected to be.

Certain of those Liberty Motors built in 1918 are now driving Russian tanks against the Germans. The Allison, outstanding liquid-cooled motor of the present air defense drive, is a direct descendant of the Liberty.

How Liberty motors designed to propel allied planes against the Germans in 1918 remained to propel Russian tanks against Germany 23 years later, is an absorbing story now being recalled by Detroit motor engineers.

The Liberty motor was to be America's answer to the German threat in the last war. The highest hopes were held out when the first pilot model was presented on July 4, 1917. This 400-horsepower, 800-pound motor seemed good enough to give definite air superiority to any plane it propelled, so more than 22,000 were ordered from several plants.

The first production models came out at Thanksgiving time, but minor bugs developed, and mass production was set back. By spring of 1918, production was still lagging disappointingly. Real mass production of this really superior motor was just getting well under way when the Armistice came.

Well, there was the government with thousands of excellent Liberty motors on hand and no war to use them in. They were sold by thousands at "remainder" prices.

One of the buyers was the Allison Experimental Co., started in 1915 by James Allison, a founder of the Indianapolis Speedway. He had built many of them in the first place, and was well qualified to rebuild them for various uses. Some parts were strengthened, and superior bronze-and-steel bearings designed.

The Allison went all over the world and some of them are still in use in places. One of the largest sales was to Soviet Russia during the Twenties. A large quantity of the rebuilt Liberties were bought for tank propulsion. Engineers believe it is these which are undoubtedly still in use on the Russian front today.

In the meantime Allison was going along in a modest way, building occasional racing cars, experimental motors and crankshaft bearings which gradually began to be standard in most aviation motors. In 1929, in order to acquire these bearings and other patents, as well as the skilled personnel Allison had gathered about him, General Motors bought the Allison plant after the founder's death.

By 1935 the plant began to expand in its old Indianapolis location, developing a liquid-cooled motor whose foundation was in an experimental model built for the Navy's dirigible program in 1930. There were traces of the old Liberty in it yet, certain tricks with connecting rods and crankshafts learned in 1918.

This new Allison passed Army tests in 1937, but few were built until 1940. Then the go-ahead was given by the government, and the present magnificent Indianapolis plant, perhaps the largest engine plant in the world, was born. (Turn To Page Nine)

Eire War Policy Hurts British in Sub Battle

EIRE—the Irish Free State—is one of the serious bystanders of World War II. As one correspondent recently reported, the "thoroughly charming but beautifully illogical" people of this Emerald Isle are torn by conflicting emotions.

The majority want Britain to defeat the axis. The majority also want to see the English "humbled a little." A few clamor for intervention against Germany. Others—a small minority—hope for an axis victory.

Haziest blow to Britain is Eire's refusal to renege the Anglo-British agreement of 1938 and give the British bases to fight the German U-boat menace.

One of the painful results of this policy has been a rising tide of adverse sentiment in the United States. The people of Eire value American friendship highly, are puzzled by U. S. government's dislike for their war policy.

The 1939 stamp above, picturing George Washington, American eagle and harp, was issued in commemoration of the 150th anniversary of the Constitution of the

A resident of North Conewago avenue trudged eleven blocks through the drizzling rain Thursday afternoon to his home, rather than board a crowded street car and take the chances of crushing a cake which cost him 18 cents at a bakery—an eye to economy.

Test your knowledge of correct social usage by answering the following questions, then checking against the authoritative answers below:

1. If a man is walking down the street with a woman in the rain and she has an umbrella, should he carry it for her?
2. When a husband and wife are going somewhere together and talking along a baby, should the husband carry the baby or leave that to his wife?
3. If a man has a new baby daughter, is it polite to say, "I'll bet you wanted a boy?"
4. Is it all right to give a woman baby gifts shortly before the baby is born?
5. If friends give a prospective shower for a mother is it good taste to put a notice of the party in the paper calling it a "stork" shower?

MAN ABOUT MANHATTAN

By GEORGE TUCKER

NEW YORK—I went out to Chic Johnson's farm over the weekend. The nostalgic trophies of 25 years of vaudeville were there. So was that prize herd of Borden's cattle you saw at the World's Fair. There was a Chinese chef and a Swedish maid. The cellars groaned under their burden of hundreds of jars of vegetables and preserves.

The meadows were sweet with alfalfa.
There was a soiree-room and sound equipment for motion pictures over the eight-car garage. Buried in a hillside was a 15,000-gallon water tank. A spring bubbled in a valley that had been dammed at each end, forming a lake that by next spring will hold trout. In the evening the deer come out of the thickets to steal a free meal from Farmer Johnson's apple orchard. I stood on a hillside and saw gorgeous Hungarian pheasants stroll out of a thicket. They eyed me quizzically and moseyed off, showing no alarm.

IN THE great nursery the baby calves were frisking like awkward puppies. In the nearby white, modern barns the prize herd took its evening siesta in an atmosphere sweet as apple cider.

On this farm business Chic Johnson, the hefty member of the fun firm of Olsen and Johnson, has gone whole hog. He has about 300 acres. It just a dairy. It is a plantation. The only thing lacking is the cotton fields. If things go blooey, he could retire there and live out his life in the serenity that comes with plenty. Johnson's farm is about 60 miles from the Winter Garden theater on Broadway, where he and Olsen are rehearsing their new show, "Sons O' Fun." This is their successor to "Hellzapoppin'," now in its fourth year.

JOHNSON is a fast man with an automobile. He commutes to and from his country acres, named Winter Garden Farm, every day. No hour is too late for him to climb into his car and negotiate that 60 miles of winding country roads and hillsides. When you get there, two giant milk bottles, about 20 feet high, mark the driveway. The Big House commands the valley from a hill, but Johnson doesn't live in it. He lets the help live in the Big House. He lives in a cottage back of the Big House. Between the two buildings is a wishing well. Old hand-hewn beams and foundations more than a century old support the remodeled structures.

I went out ostensibly to fish because sometime ago I dropped by the Winter Garden with a fishing rod in my hand to watch a rehearsal. When Johnson saw it, he stopped the rehearsal. Wild-eyed, he clambered down the stage stairs and seized it.

"FISH!" he cried. "You like to fish?" Then he told of his farm and of the wonderful fishing in China Lake, which was filled with bass, and as for the trout—they were so husky it was a commonplace for several of them to gang up on a man and swamp his boat, just for the devil of it. China Lake was a jewel of nature set between hills, cool and deep. I saw trout breaking the surface from one end to the other.

But the trout season had ended only the day before. The bass were after bass. Bronze, large-mouth bass that are doggedly game. Small mouth bass that exploded in a swirl of shimmering water. That's what we were after. Bass. I hate like hell to admit we didn't

FUNNY BUSINESS

"Wish I could get time off to do a little shooting this fall."

Events of Historic Significance Scheduled October 31-November 3

Several events of the most important historic significance to take place in this section in recent years will occur from October 31 to November 3, when Warren County's "History Days" will be observed. Everyone in Warren county is invited to participate and many important personsages will come from a distance, including leaders in the Pennsylvania Historical Society, and those who have conducted the archeological survey in the upper Allegheny valley during the past summer.

The public program will open with a free public meeting at the Warren High School Auditorium at 7:30 P. M. on Friday evening, October 31, when a report will be made on the summer's work of the State Historical Commission's archeological survey of the Upper Allegheny Valley, by the men who did it. Illustrated talks will be given by Dr. C. E. Schaeffer, on "Round Builders"; by Dr. Wesley Bliss on "The Sugar Run Site"; and by Mr. Edmund Carpenter on "Upper Allegheny Indian Sites." More than 20,000 persons have already visited the excavations which have been made at the confluence of Sugar Run and the Allegheny River, and so many have been interested in the work being carried on that over 5,000 folders have been distributed giving answers to the questions asked about this research into Indian burial grounds disclosing something of the life of these local residents of some 800 years ago, about whom little has hitherto been known.

Coinciding with this work, the Warren County Historical Society is making it possible for local people to join in the plan, and at the same time share in one of the features of Warren County's "History Days" at no added cost. Memberships are being solicited in the local Historical Society at $2.00 per year for an ordinary membership, $5.00 for a Contributing membership, and $25.00 for a Sustaining Membership. Any one of these memberships entitles the holder to admission to the dinner of the Warren County Historical Society, which will be held at the Y. W. C. A. Building at 6:30 P. M. on Saturday, November 1. For those who have not already received letters announcing the entire program, coupons will appear in the Times-Mirror, on which membership application may be made, and the application, with remittance for dues, must be in the hands of the local Treasurer, H. A. Cray, before 4:00 P. M. on October 29 in order to receive a receipt bearing a dinner admission ticket.

The dinner on November 1 will be addressed by Dr. W. N. Fenton, Troquois expert of the Smithsonian Institution, Washington, D. C., who will speak on "The Allegany Senecas: An Indian Culture in the 20th Century." Dr. Fenton is a first authority on our up-river Indian neighbors, and on their real life, which white men seldom see, and his talk will be illustrated with unique pictures. Other guests on this occasion will be Hon. R. P. Wright, Chairman of the Pennsylvania Historical Commission, Dr. S. K. Stevens, State Historian, and Dr. D. A. Cadzow, State Archaeologist, and other notables. It must be emphasized that this dinner meeting will be free only to members of the local society, and the number must be limited to those who first send in their memberships, either on the cards which they have received by mail, or by using the coupon which will appear for a few days in the Times-Mirror.

In addition to these two principal meetings, there will be a luncheon at 12:15 P. M. on Saturday November 1 at the Kinzua Community House, for which reservations may be made before October 29 at the office of George E. Cowden, Warren National Bank Building; this will be followed by a free public meeting at the Kinzua M. E. Church, when illustrated talks will be given by Dr. F. M. Setzler, a mound culture authority, and by Dr. T. Dale Stewart, who is studying the Sugar Run material, both one of these men from the National Museum, Washington, D. C. And at 3:15 P. M. on Saturday, there will be an inspection of the Sugar Run site, above Kinzua on Route 59.

The ceremonies of Warren County's "History Days" will conclude with a free public meeting at 3:00 P. M. on Monday, November 3, at the Philomel Club, commemorating the 200th anniversary of the birth of General William Irvine, who was associated with the early development of this region.

Further details of the program for these interesting "History Days" will appear in the Times-Mirror between now and the time of their occurrence.

NORTH WARREN CELEBRATION IS BEING PLANNED

That the annual North Warren Halloween Celebration starting Wednesday, October 29, is an assured success was amply indicated by the spirit of enthusiastic cooperation so much in evidence at the special meeting of the North Warren City Club held last evening.

All the different committees responsible for the many and varied jobs in preparation for the 4-day festivities are busily carrying out their assignments, so that everything will be in readiness for the opening night.

Though, out of respect for the intense business activity of the times which would make it difficult for interested parties to prepare floats, it has been decided to have no general street parade. A special Kiddie Costume Parade will be held Saturday afternoon November 1. Prize awards will be made for best costumes and there will be a special gift for every boy and girl in the line of march. All Warren county children are invited to participate.

Another outstanding feature of the celebration will be the home decoration that has won much favorable comment in former years. Every householder in the community is being urged to decorate his home in keeping with the spirit of the occasion, so that the many visitors to the town will feel that they have literally been transported to the land of witches, black cats, and goblins.

The huge indoor Carnival being held in the Community House the nights of Wednesday, October 29 and Thursday, November 1, through Saturday, November 3, will present new and novel enter-

GOOD STAND OF TULIP POPLAR ON STATE LAND

Harrisburg, Oct. 21—One of the best stands of tulip poplar in Pennsylvania is located in the Shick State Forest, in Licking Creek Valley, Huntingdon county, according to W. E. McIntire, chief of the Division of Management, Department of Forests and Waters.

The trees are about forty-five years old and particular interest manifested in this stand because it consists almost entirely of trees of this single species. It is unusual to find pure stands of tulip poplar because they generally occur in mixture with other hardwoods. Scattered throughout this area are only a few trees of other kinds such as white ash, basswood.

The tulip poplar is one of the most desirable and valuable timber trees native to Pennsylvania. The forests it grows tall and straight, sometimes the main trunk is without a single limb for a height of seventy-five feet from three to five feet in diameter were frequently found in the original forests.

With the removal of timber from the original forests, most of the tulip trees were cut so that they remain today. Groups of young tulip and scattered specimens occur in mixture with other hardwoods throughout the southern and central portions of Pennsylvania, and the tree is locally abundant in the western part of the state. Its wood belongs in the first rank with white pine is light grained, soft, easy to work, and almost as light in weight as white pine weighing twenty-six pounds per cubic foot. The wood is widely used for interior finish, furniture and wooden ware.

Rayon-Safe Soap Is Located By Experts

Chicago, Oct. 21—Rayon experts of the Better Fabrics Testing Bureau and the U. S. Testing Co. today hailed the successful completion of their scientific quest for a soap that not only satisfied women's needs for washing power but was also safe for rayon.

An informed source revealed that hundreds of exhaustive tests were made by both of these nationally known laboratories. Finally, a well-known soap called Super Suds was approved as being Rayon-Safe.

The reason these tests were made, it was stated was because so many women had asked for specific information. As a consequence, the following set of rayon washing rules were decided upon by the laboratory experts. (1) Test a small patch of the rayon in plain water for color-fastness. If color runs, it's not washable. (2) Wash rayons separately, by hand, with lukewarm suds. Use Rayon-Safe soap. (3) Do not soak rayons. Wash quickly and gently. Do not rub, wring or twist. (4) Rinse thoroughly gently in clean lukewarm water. Roll in towel, but don't leave there. (5) Use a moderate iron.
